RESEARCH INTERESTS

My research interests center on understanding the urban-climate-environment nexus. I am especially keen to use remote sensing, GIS and geospatial techniques, environment and climate models, and machine learning approaches to address cutting-edge issues on urban environmental/climatic changes and urban sustainability, and to deliver policy-relevant mitigation and adaption solutions. My current research focuses on the following themes:

- Remote sensing of urban environment;
- Global environmental and climate change;
- Land-based solution for climate change mitigation and sustainable development;
- Remote sensing image processing techniques and applications;

APPOINTMENTS

- 2023- Research Assistant Professor, Department of Land Surveying and Geo-Informatics, Hong Kong Polytechnic University (Lab director: Dr Qihao Weng).
- 2022- Editorial Board member, ISPRS Journal of Photogrammetry and Remote Sensing
- 2020-2022 Postdoctoral Research Fellow, Centre for Nature-based Climate Solutions, National University of Singapore (Lab director: Dr Lian Pin Koh)

EDUCATION

- 2015-2020 PhD in Remote Sensing and Geographic Information System, Zhejiang University
- 2018-2019 Visiting PhD Student, Indiana State University (Advisor: Dr Qihao Weng)
- 2011-2015 BSc in Environment and Resources Sciences, Zhejiang University
